Mark Schnurman, founder of The Perfect Franchise, never promoted Phoenix Franchise Brands EVER! At least, not for the last three months! by Sean Kelly

UnhappyFranchisee.Com

Mark Schnurman, founder of The Perfect Franchise franchise brokers, is irate.

He's morally outraged.

He's not going to stand idle in the face of such injustice, and may be on the phone with his lawyers RIGHT NOW initiating legal action.

You see, I published a post with a list of links to pages promoting the embattled Phoenix Franchise Brands to prospective franchisees.

Guess Who's Still Promoting Phoenix Franchise Brands? \(UPDATED\)

With few exceptions, sales of Phoenix Franchise Brands franchises originated with franchise brokers believed to have been paid $35,000 commissions per sale.

Several dozen franchisees of those brands (Fetch! Pet Care, Spray Foam Genie, Furry Land) have posted public horror stories claiming that they were deceived and exploited.

The horror stories include agonizing descriptions of mothers of special needs children being forced back to work, marriages split apart under the weight of mounting financial pressure, and 100% disabled combat veterans fighting of depression, PTSD and suicidal thoughts.

But none of those things seem to concern Mark Schnurman.

Nothing Outrages a Franchise Broker More Than a Well-Founded Allegation

No, Schnurman's moral outrage and legal threats are directed at a blog post that links to pages bearing his company name, created by his senior executive.

Mark Schnurman wrote:

“ You mass email below is slander and I will respond with legal action if it is not retracted.

He is outraged that he and his company are being accused of being associated with a website that he and his company seem to be clearly associated with.

Welcome to the topsy-turvy world of honesty-impaired franchise salespeople.

First Mark says:

“Those brands have never been in good standing in our portfolio”

He reiterates:

“Phoenix brands are not and have not been in good standing with us...”

Then he says::

“TPF consultants have not presented a single phoenix brand in at least 3 months...”

Say what?

Mark Schnurman is livid at the suggestion that he promotes Phoenix Franchise Brands:

“We do not promote them.”

When faced with the nagging fact that there's a website with his company name doing just that, he states, yes, The Perfect Franchise Senior Consultant Marty Greenbaum CFE created it but “the site has never been active.”

The site's not active, just publicly visible and indexed in Google's search engines.

Dear Mark Schnurman: Stop Talking & Delete the Freaking Site.

It's Friday afternoon and I've given up trying to speak rationally to someone who can't (or won't) disengage Victim mode.

If he can argue that the active site is not active, he'll never understand the problem with these statements posted below his own company logo:

“Fetch! Pet Care stands as one of America's safest and most affordable franchise options...”

“As [a Spray Foam Genie] Area Developer, you command... fantastic earnings potential with net profits soaring over $500k. With a small staff that's well-compensated and a flex space requirement of just 2,500 square feet, Spray Foam Genie offers the perfect balance of profitability and operational efficiency.”

“Incredible Item 19 Earnings Claim

“Franchisee Investor Model (Absentee): Our Corporate Management Team runs the business for you, requiring just 2 hours a month commitment. Open in any market, not just where you live, expanding your horizons.”

“Spray Foam Genie is not just a business; it's a family.”

“Furry Land FULLY ABSENTEE (Investor Model): In this model, you act as an investor while Corporate handles the setup and management of the business for you.”

“A Convenient and Profitable Venture...”

“A Lucrative Business Model...”

“Unlimited Growth Potential: Every metropolitan area in North America has enough business for 20 grooming vehicles, leaving plenty of room for expansion.”
